CONCRETE

It is a fiberglass reinforced concrete material that provides pleasing aesthetics and structural integrity that will remain stable for a lifetime.

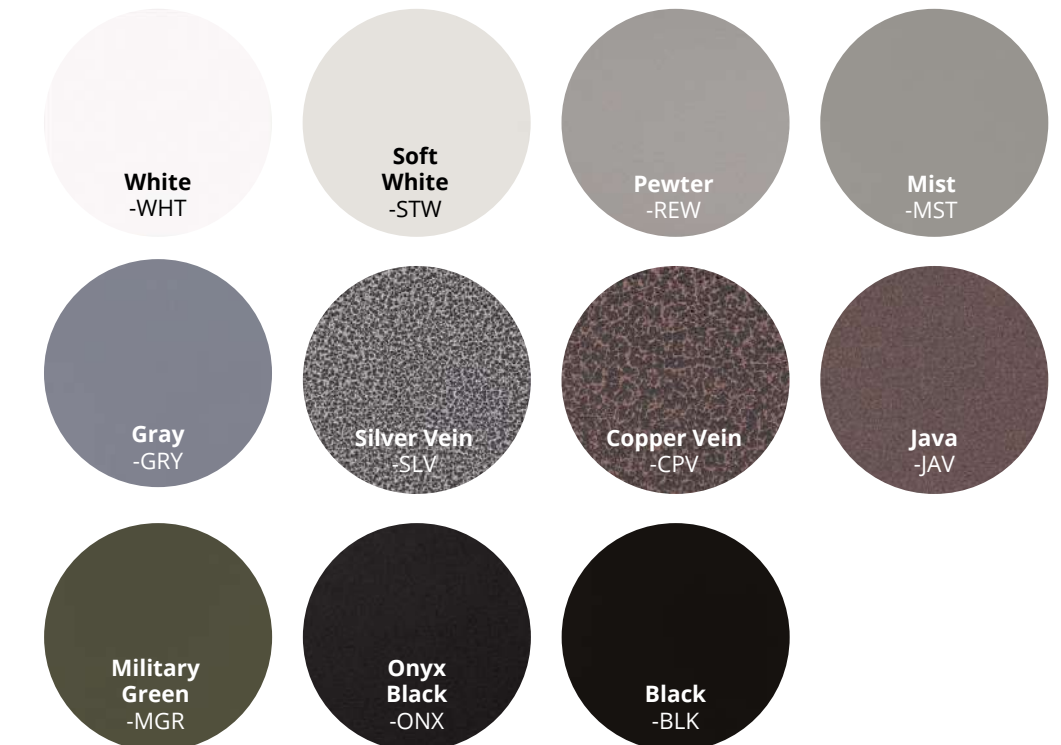

Another advantage of glass fiber reinforced concrete over traditional concrete material is that it provides greater flexibility and higher impact resistance while maintaining the previously mentioned integrity. In addition to these characteristics, it is highly resistant to any weather or temperature fluctuations, making it ideal for outdoor use and fire pits.

POWDER COAT

It is a sleek and durable material and finish that pairs perfectly with fire pits and outdoor tables. Powder coated materials undergo a specific surface finishing technique that involves applying dry powder to a substrate, usually metal, and then curing it with heat.

This makes the material resistant to many factors and allows it to maintain its durability. It resists chips and cracks, so your product will look the same as the day it was installed and configured.
